The current code ISO 4217 for weight is mxx; before the revaluation of 1993, the code mpx was used. The weight is divided into 100 centavos, represented by "c". The Mexican peso is the fifteenth most traded currency in the world, the third currency most exchanged by the Americas (after the dollar oa and the Canadian dollar), and the currency most exchanged by Latin America. [2] As of September 26, 2021[update], the weight change rate was $23.51 per euro, $20.06 per US dollar, and $15.85 per Canadian dollar. In the 19th century Real Silver weighed 3.383 g, 65/72 = fine 90.3%, while the finesse of Gold Escudo was reduced to 21 karat or fine of 87.5%. 15-16 Silver Reales was worth a gold escudo and eight royal coins of 24.44 g of fine silver were widely called pesos in Spanish America and dollars in England and the Americas colonies. These pesos or dollars have been coined by the rich results of modern Mexico and Bolivian silver mine and exported in large quantities to Europe and Asia. These pesos served as a global silver standard reserve currency until the beginning of the 20th century and became the model for the various pesos of Spanish America and (among others) the US dollar, Chinese yuan and Japanese yen. For the B series, the nominal value of Nuevo Equivalent Weight was 1 .1000 of the old nominal value of Weight for the A series. For example, the A Old Weight MXP $20.000 series and the B Nuevo Peso MXN $20 banknotes share the same design, apart from the updated nominal value. Old and New Pesos circulated at the same time between 1993 and 1995, but the Old Peso Serie A banknotes were gradually withdrawn at that time, and the new C series "New Weight" banknotes began in 1994. From 1 January 1996, the "New Weight" was simply renamed "Peso" and the new D-series notes were issued identical to the C series except for the word "New" eliminated. The ISO 4217 code, however, remained unchanged as MXN. The A and AA Series banknotes have been demoted and are no longer legally linked since 1 January 1996. [8] Although they remain legal tender, the banknotes of the series B, C, D and A1 are about to be withdrawn from circulation. In addition, the new MXN $ 1000 Series F bill is without. [9] The most commonly circulated notes in Mexico are MXN $20 and beyond in the F and G series. In the same way, the B-series denominations in Nuevo Peso have been spread since 1993 [9] and the A and A Series coins have been demoted since 15 November 1995. [10] Unlike the notes, the B series coins differed by size and design from the A series coins. Coins of the C series (which dropped the prefix "Ns" on the MXN coins $1, NS5, NS 10, NS 20 and NS 50) were spread since 1996 following the withdrawal of the A and AA series coins. Coins of the B and C series in unusual denominations (10 cent-centive and MXN $20 and greater) are gradually withdrawn from circulation. Although they remain legal tender, they are put bytween they arrive at commercial banks. [9] The most commonly circulated coins in Mexico are MXN $ 10 and lower in the Serie C and D.
